MILL MEN WANT NO LABOR LAW

DESIRE TO REGULATE THE MATTER THEMSELVES.

They Make an Agreement and Send a Petition to the Legislature, Saying That They Have Always Cared for the Welfare of the Operatives and Know Their Needs.

The meeting of the cotton mill people remained in session until after five o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was much discussion, but the gathering was very harmonious. Mr. J. M. Odell stated that the object of the meeting was to discuss measures relating to the improvement of operatives in cotton mills and formulating articles of agreement for carrying out such measures as might be agreed upon, and also to petition the Legislature to take no action relating to this subject, but permit the cotton mills to handle it themselves.

It was stated that in the past the mills had in every way promoted churches, schools, and other reasonable means of providing the facilities required for the moral and intellectual conditions of the cotton mill operatives. The kind of houses built has always been better and better. The hours of labor have already been materially reduced.

It was stated further that there was ample evidence to show that the mill men themselves have as much interest in the subject as the Legislature or the public could possibly have, and that they are in much better position to design the facilities for improvement as well as to carry them out.

As was stated yesterday, a committee was appointed to draw up a paper for the consideration and adoption of the meeting. This committee was composed of J. M. Odell, W. A. Erwin, D. A. Thompkins, J. S. Spencer, B. F. Long and J. W. Cannon.

They presented the following paper, which was adopted without amendment:

We, the undersigned cotton mill owners and managers agree to the following, taking effect March 1st, 1901:

(1). That one week's work shall not exceed 66 hours.

(2). That no child less than 12 years old shall work in a cotton mill during the term of an available public school.

Provided this shall not apply to children of widows or physically disabled parents. Provided further, that 10 years shall be the lowest limit at which children may be worked under any circumstance.

(3). That we will co-operate with any feasible plan to promote the education of the working people in the State and will cheerfully submitto our part of the burdens and labors to advance the cause of general education.

(4). On the basis of the above agreements of the cotton mill owners and managers we hereby petition the legislature not to pass any labor laws at this session of the legislature.

A committee of five was appointed to present these to the Legislature. The committee is as follows:

J. M. Odell, Ceaser Cone, Thomas Emery, John Q. Gant, and S. B. Tanner.

The following resolution was drawn by Mr. J. S. Wynne, of Raleigh, and adopted by the manufacturers:

"Resolved that we appreciate fully the need of textile education in North Carolina, and urge the present Legislature to provide suitable means for the erection, equipment and maintenance of a first class textile school at the Agricultural & Mechanical College."

Mr. R. B. Glenn, representing some gentlemen from the New England Factory Mutual Insurance Companies, addressed the meeting in reference to some grievance to the factory mutuals operating under the laws of North Carolina. It was stated that the present laws practically ruled the Mutual out of the State. The purpose of the address was to acquire the support of the cotton mill men to some amendment which the mutuals wish to ask the Legislature to make in the insurance laws.

Mr. J Elwood Cox has purchased what is known as the Groome property on Main street

Colonial Monument Assured.

The Colonial Monument, celebrating the ten years prior to the Declaration of Independence of 1776, and the great work done for freedom by North Carolina during that time, to be erected on the Guilford Battle Ground, is assured. The subscriptions now amount to $550.00 of the $1,000 needed, and no general appeal has yet been made. We say it is assured now in the belief that the business men of the city will come up promptly with the necessary amount remaining. Since so much has been contributed by outsiders they cannot think of doing less. Let the subscriptions be sent in without delay in amounts from $5 to $50.00. The amounts should be sent in at once so that the order for the monument may be placed.

The subscriptions now stand:

PRETTIEST OF HOME WEDDINGS

THIS DESCRIBES THE ONE AT POMONA YESTERDAY.

The Marriage of Miss Eva Lindley to Dr. J. Pinkney Turner at Five Yesterday Afternoon.

One of the prettiest home weddings ever witnessed in this section was that of Miss Eva J. Lindley to Dr. J. Pinkney Turner, at the magnificent home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. J. Van Lindley, at Pomona, yesterday afternoon at five o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. A. Smoot of the Methodist church, Fayetteville. Only the immediate family and a few relatives of each of the contracting parties were present. The uncle and former guardian of the groom, Hon. W. D. Truner, Lieutenant Governor, was expected, but wired at the last moment that public business would detain him in Raleigh.

The parlor, drawing room and hall were thrown into one large hall and the whole decorated with a wealth of floral designs unsurpassed. The prevailing color was pink. The bride's attendants, Misses Sallie Cook and Pearl Lindley, were dressed in white organdy over pink. The bride wore a most becoming gown of dark blue and carried an exquisite boquet of bride's roses and lillies of the valley. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Paul Lindley. D. J. S. Betts was best man. While the ceremony was being performed the Bartlett's Dream was played.

At the conclusion of the congratulations following the marriage, the party went to the dining room and enjoyed a most elaborate supper. The party then came to the station, where Dr. and Mrs. Turner boarded the train for the South. They will be at home after February first, corner of Wainman and Schenck streets, city.

While none but relatives were present at the marriage, there are hundreds of friends here and elsewhere who wish the popular groom and charming bride the greatest of happiness.

ANOTHER WAR IN KENTUCKY.

TWO PERSONS DEAD, SEVERAL ARE WOUNDED, A BUILDING WRECKED.

Rollo White, Angered Because James Shotwell Refused to Allow Him to Keep Company With His Daughter, Shot the Old Man and the War Began.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Corbin, Kentucky, Jan. 17.—Two persons are killed, another will die, three or four others are wounded and a building wrecked by dynamite as a result of a reign of terror here last night and yesterday afternoon.

James Shotwell was shot and mortally wounded at noon yesterday by Rollo White, who was angered because Shotwell told him that he could not keep company with his daughter any longer. White immediately went to the store of his brother, where he surrendered to the deputy sheriff. Shotwell's family then swore that they would kill White if any attempt was made to remove him to the county seat at Williamsburg. The Shotwells were concerned in the recent killing of Judge Moffatt, Marshal Henry Hartford, and the wounding of William Holland.

Telegrams were sent to Judge Morrow, who immediately ordered a posse to the scene from the county seat. Meanwhile White and his friends were barricaded with the deputy sheriff in the store.

When night fell the friends of Shotwell charged the store and wrecked it with dynamite, and firing upon it at the same time. All the casualties have probably not yet been learned, but these are known: Miss Susan Cox, an innocent bystander, killed by a stray bullet; Sulten Faris, killed by the explosion; Hadley Bradley, Tracy Cooper, and an unknown traveling man wounded.

Rollo White is now in custody of the sheriff, who began holding inquests at midnight. Shotwell is unconscious and his death is expected.

President Forced to Cancel Social Engagements.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The President has been obliged to cancel all social engagements made for the balance of the seasons. While he has gained strength rapidly, so much work has accumulated that his physician has ordered a cancellation of social engagements in order to save his strength.

HOME INSURANCE COMPANIES

THE TWO GREENSBORO ONES COMPLETE MOST SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

The Annual Meeting Held Today and a Fifteen Per Cent Dividend Declared for Policy Holders—Upwards of Ten Thousand People Interested.

The Southern Stock Mutual and the Underwriters of Greensboro, the two fire insurance companies of Greensboro, held their annual meeting today in the offices of the company. From the fact that the stockholders of these companies represent nearly every section of the State, the annual meetings are of more than local interest. Perhaps the stockholders represent greater business interests and more capital than do those of any other organization in the State. Beside the stockholders there are nearly 10,000 policyholders who are interested directly in the profits of the companies.

While the success of the companies has been almost phenomenal, it has been deserved. Beside keeping insurance money at home and causing it to be invested in the State, which has been heretofore so drained by foreign insurance, the companies pay back thousands of dollars to people who insure.

These companies have just completed the most successful year since their organization. One of the companies is just entering upon its seventh year, the other upon its fourth year. During the year 1900, the two companies increased their assets from $253,278.87 to $271,950.50, and their reserve for reinsurance (emergency fund) from $34,415.41 to $43,201.06, and their surplus from $17,816.81 to $23,736.81. The year 1900 shows an increase in premium receipts from $58,543.62 to $66,380.37, being an increase of 14 per cent. The record which these companies have made since their organization is a very remarkable one, as the figures given below easily show:

Total premiums since organization.....	$251,420 36
Total losses since organization.....	57,236.44
Dividends to policy-holders since organization.....	39,645 75

The most important business transacted at the annual meeting was the declaring of a 15 per cent dividend to policy holders by both the Southern Stock Mutual Insurance Company and the Underwriters of Greensboro.

Mr. B. D. Heath, of Charlotte, N. C., was elected President of the Southern Stock Mutual, to succeed Dr. J. M. Worth, deceased; and Mr. E. P. Wharton, of Greensboro, was elected Vice-President, and Mr. A. W. McAlister, of Greensboro, Secretary and Treasurer.

The old officers of the Underwriters of Greensboro were re-elected: J. Van Lindley, President; E. P. Wharton, Vice-President; A. W. McAlister, Secretary and Treasurer.

The following were elected directors of the Southern Stock Mutual Insurance Company:

Lawrence S. Holt, J. S. Carr, J. S. Spencer, B. D. Heath, Wm. E. Holt, A. W. McAlister, Edwin Shaver, F. J. Murdock, Jos. G. Brown, Bennehan Cameron, James P. Sawyer, E. P. Wharton, L. Banks Holt, J. W. Scott, J. Van Lindley, L. M. Scott.

The following were elected directors of the Underwriters of Greensboro.

L. M. Scott, E. P. Wharton, J. S. Carr, W. H. Worth, Cary J. Hunter, B. D. Heath, J. Van Lindley, T. J. Hackney, J. W. Cannon, W. P. Bealle. A. W. McAlister, G. A. Norwood, Jr., H. W. Jackson, J. S. Spencer, J. P. Caldwell, M. R. Braswell, H. W. Fries, J. M. Hendrix, J. Y. Joyner, R. P. Walker, A. A. Shuford, R. C. Strong, Wm. E. Holt, D. A. Tompkins, C. G. Wright.

MARRIAGE IN HIGH POINT.

Miss Antoinette Matton to Rev. J. W. Goodman, of Hillsboro.

High Point, Jan. 17.—Miss Antoinette Matton, daughter of Rev. Wm. G. Matton, of this place, and Rev. James William Goodman, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Hillsboro, N. C., were married last evening at six o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal church here, Rev. Wm. G. Matton, father of the bride, assisted by Rev. C. E. Hodgin, of Greensboro, and Rev. J. E. Gay, of the Methodist Episcopal church, of this place, officiating. On the rostrum around the pulpit were also the following ministers: Rev. W. R. Lowdermilk, pastor of the Methodist Protestant churches on Asheboro circuit; Rev. J. M. Hilliard, of this place, and Rev. John Wakefield, of Salisbury.

The ushers that seated the large company of friends were Mr. W. C. Jones, Prof. W. C. Lane, Prof. Geo. H. Crowell and Mr. Charles Ragan.

The chancel was elaborately decorated in palms, ivy and other evergreens and lighted by lamps with pink shades. Just before the ceremony the electric lights were turned on in the main part of the church.

Miss Lucy Eshelman sang an appropriate selection from Lohengrin before the entry of the bridal party.

Master George A. Matton, nephew of the bride, and Master Rob Beneim, gate keepers, were the first down the aisle. They were followed by Messrs. W. C. Jones and Charles Ragan, Misses Dixie Leach and Daisy Rankin passing down opposite aisles. Mrs. Charles Ragan, matron of honor, followed next. Then entered from the right vestry of the church the groom with his brother, Mr. Walter Goodman, of Salisbury, as his his best man, as likewise did the bride from the left vestry leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. George A. Matton.

The bride was becomingly attired and carried a boquet of bride's roses.

The matron of honor was prettily gowned as was the other attendants and carried a boquet of pink flowers. Misses Leach and Rankin also carried boquets of pink flowers.

The wedding march was played by a select orchestra composed of Messrs. John R. Brown, Fred Eshelman, J. Darnald and Frank Remfrey; Misses Maude Brown and Lucy Eshelman.

While the ceremony was being performed a selection from Lohengrin was softly played by the orchestra.

A short reception at the bride's home followed the ceremony. The bride and groom left on the 7:05 p. m. train for an extended bridal tour South.

MISTREATED HER STEP-DAUGHTER.

Whipped Her Own Son With His Clothing on and Then Stripped the Little Deformed Step-Child and Beat It.

Asheville Citizen.

The hearing on the petition of Capt. . W. Patton to have little Mamie L Hudson, daughter of W. O. Hudson, committed to the Children's home, alleging cruelty on the part of her parents, which was begun yesterday afternoon, was continued this morning before Clerk Erwin.

The testimony elicited some startling evidences of cruelty on the part of Mrs. Hudson to the little child, who is deformed. Mrs. Hudson is Mamie's step-mother and is not now in the city. It does not appear that Mr. Hudson has ever been cruel to the child except at Mrs. Hudson's dictation. The petitioners introduced testimony to show that Mr. Hudson is in the habit of drinking, and there was considerable testimony on both sides in this regard. The petitioners wished to show that he is not the proper person to have charge of the little girl.

There seems to be little room for doubt that the child was abused and mistreated by her step-mother, and the evidence showed, also, that the little girl has an income of about $30 per month. This is regarded by the petitioners as a material cause for the mistreatment.

The testimony of colored help showed that Mrs. Hudson whipped her own child with his clothes on, on account of the loss of a watch, then stripped Mamie and whipped her with a buggy whip and stamped her. One stated that Mrs. Hudson said she was trying to kill the child on the sly. The witness said Mrs. Hudson could not be called crazy, because she had plenty of sense, and when she made a mistake it was in her own favor. As to Mr. Hudson, they stated that he always had liquor in the house, and they had seen him drink, and at one time he got very drunk, causing the boarders to leave. Mrs. Hudson was away at the time, and when she returned next morning she beat him on the head with a poker and made him get up, although no one else had been able to induce him to move. Mr. Hudson had to whip the child at times to pacify Mrs. Hudson, the witness said, and he was completely dominated by Mrs. Hudson.

Miss Rockefeller Married to Prentice.

Special to The Telegram.

New York, Jan. 17.—The plans for the wedding of Miss Alta Rockefeller, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, to Mr. E. Parmelee Prentice, were changed on account of the death of little John D. Rockefeller McCormick, the favorite grandson of the millionaire. Instead of the important social event intended, to which some fifteen hundred guests were to be invited, the couple were married today in a quiet home wedding, the ceremony being performed in the simplest manner by Rev. Dr. W. H. P. Famce, former pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church and now president of Brown University. The bridal presents were superb and very costly and numerous. Mr. Prentice is from Chicago and has been stopping for a forthnight at the University Club in this city in anticipation of the pleasing event.

Who's Hill? Says Watterson.

New York Sun.

"What do you think of Hill's Washington boom for the Presidency?" the Hon. Henry Watterson of the Blue Grass State was asked last night at the Waldorf-Astoria.

"Hey?"

"Hill's boom for President, put out in Washington the other day?" replied The Sun man.

"Who's Hill?" queried Mr. Watterson.

"Hill? Mr. Hill of New York; David Bennett Hill."

"Hey?"

"Mr. Hill. He is said to be a prominent light in the Democratic party."

"What damn nonsense!" snapped Mr. Watterson, "Some fellow down there has been making a shooting gallery of his mouth, and firing birdshot at that."

TEXAS HAS GONE OIL CRAZY.

Dallas Special, 14th, to New York Sun.

The oil excitement caused by the recent wonderful strike at Beaumont is spreading over Texas. Dallas capitalists are nearly as much exercised over the discovery as the Beaumont people are. Private telegrams received here today and tonight are to the effect that the flow of the Lucas gusher has not diminished. Machinery was nearly completed today to control the flow and save the oil. It is expected that this will be accompiished by tomorrow. Approximately 100,000 barrels of oil have been lost up till tonight. Many strangers reached Beaumont today, coming mostly from the North and Northwest, to inspect the new district for prospective investors.

Fully two hundred new borings were started today. In addition to a string of well sinkers, strung out from Beaumont to Sabine Pass on the south, a distance of forty miles, borers also went to work to the eastward of Beaumont, operating all the way to Orange, a distance of thirty miles. A party of New Orleans capitalists also have prospectors in the field on the Louisiana side of the Sabine River, opposite Orange. Mr. Autrey, a Corsicana oil-well owner, reached Dallas tonight. He said "I have never seen anything in oil like this Beaumont strike. It's the real thing. The oil is of splendid quality. The real oil district of Texas, I believe, has been struck at last." It is rumored that Mr. Autrry is here trying to organize a syndicate to prospect in a new field between Corsicana and Beaumont districts. It is also reported that Mayor "Golden Rule" Jones, of Toledo, Ohio, is in a syndicate of Ohio and Pennsylvania men at work in the new field. Everything in the shape of oil apparatus is being ordered. Among the telegrams received in Dallas today was one to an agent that read "Contract at once for 100,000 second-hand oil barrels at 40 cents if possible."

President Kivlin of the Dallas Cooperage Company said concerning this: "It can't be done. New oil barrels cost approximately $1.30 apiece. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company has a practical monopoly on all second-hand oil barrels in the country at 60 cents apiece. I don't believe that even for such a large order as 100,000 barrels they can be purchased for 40 cents."

This incident is only one of many, showing the business interest and keen and general excitement caused by the discovery at Beaumont. Phil C. Travis of Dallas, was today trying to interest local capitalists to prospect in a new field. Be said: "It is not close to Beaumont, but it is in that section of the State. I know of springs and streams where the presence of oil is so plainly apparent that before the water can be used for domestic purposes the oily substance has to be skimmed from the surface."

A bulletin from Beaumont tonight says that during the day lease or purchase option contracts to the number of 316 were made for land on which to bore for oil. These option contracts represent approximately a quarter of a million dollars. Most of them are believed to have been procured for Northern capitalists.

Kitchin Anxious for the Hazers to Get His Man.

Washington Post.

The corridors of the House were teeming yesterday with several West Point cadets--an annual occurrence at about this season—to whom something for worse than doing 100 "eagles" had happened. They had failed at their recent examination and had been dismissed, whereupon they came to Washington to see their Congressmen.

When Representative Kitchin, of North Carolina, saw the gray uniforms, it reminded him of an interest he has in recent West Point developments. "I'm hoping to hear that my cadet has been 'called out'" said the North Carolinian, and he laughed cordially in anticipation of what would happen. "I reckon he's able to take care of himself, and I reckon also they will give him a wide berth. He's a graduate of one of our North Carolina colleges, played center rush on the football team, and was a captain of the baseball team.

"Oh, he's a peach," added Mr. Kitchin, going into details. "He stands over six feet high, weighs 180 pounds, and comes of good fighting stock."

THE BIRTHDAY OF FRANKLIN.

Philadelphia, Jan. 17.—This is the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, in whose memory this Quaker City feels a most lively interest. He was born the 17th of January, 1706. He has five great monuments in this city that will ever tell of his great foresight and wisdom. They are the Philadelphia Library, the University of Pennsylvania, the American Philosophical Society, with its daughters, the Franklin Institute and Historical Society of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania Hospital. Franklin prepared all of these and went about raising money for them, in which art he was a past master. Through his efforts the Philadelphia Library was founded in 1713. He drew up the plan for the Philadephia University in 1749. From its modest beginning the University of Pennsylvania sprang. In 1743 he founded the American philosophical Society, the first institution in North America devoted to science. He was the first president. Thomas Jefferson was one of his successors. In 1751 Franklin helped Dr. Bond establish what is now the Pennsylvania Hospital. In all of these institutions of wide-reaching beneficience Benjamin Franklin was the moving spirit.

The summary of Franklin's life is full of interest.

1. Born in Boston, January 17, 1705-6.
2. He passed the first seventeen years of his life in Boston.
3. Migrated to Philadelphia, 1723.
4. He went first to England in 1724.
5. Returned in 1726.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 17

THE MANUFACTURERS' IDEA.

We believe the intentions of the mill men as expressed in their meeting here yesterday are the best. Their contention that they are friends of the operatives and understand their needs, is, as a rule, entirely true. The material manifestation of friendship of some of the mill owners of the State for their help has been conspicuous. At the same time we doubt the wisdom of their action in asking that the Legislature refrain from taking action upon this matter, aside from the question of granting the request. The object of statutes is not to restrain law abiding men, but law breakers. No doubt all the manufacturers here yesterday are living up to the resolution already, and therefore need no laws, but they cannot presume to speak for the other half not represented, among them for aught anyone knows, there may be some requiring the restraining influence of a statute.

The spirit of the paper is certainly to be commended, both for its tone and temper. At the same time we think it would not be wise to have no legislation. It cannot be doubted that legislation must come, and why not now?

In the Legislature yesterday was introduced a bill giving permission to the United States to acquire territory in this State for a National forest preserve. This relates to the measure which has for some time been before Congress for the purpose of establishing a park out of territory lying in the States of Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee. The bill before Congress directs the Secretary of Agriculture to purchase not more than 2,000,000 acres, for which an appropriation of $5,000,000 is provided. The purpose is to conserve the forests, introduce scientific forestry, and to permit the lumbering of hard woods.

Our distinguished fellow citizen, Hon. Kope Elias, predicts that Hon. Stephen Grover Cleveland will be president in 1904. Brother Elias is entitled to another guess.—Raleigh Times.

How many are coming to the brethern who knew for certain that Mr. Bryan was going to be president in 1896, and then again in 1900?

If John Brown's bones were to rise again what would he think of the burning-at-the-stake in his native state?—Burlington Messenger.

He would doubtless be jealous of his compatriotic murderers of this week.

We don't recollect to have seen a paper improve more rapidly than the Raleight Post has right recently.

Report of Attorney General Douglas.

News and Observer.

The report of Attorney General R. D. Douglas is in the hands of the printers. Mr. Douglas' report is somewhat later than the other State officers' reports, but this is due to the fact that Mr. Douglas only took charge of the office about the first of November and the work of preparing the entire report with the exception of that part relating to criminal statistics, fell upon him. This work necessitated a large amount of investigation, and overhauling of records.

The report is a very able one, and deals with questions of vital importance and interest to the State. He discusses the need of a new code, more Superior courts and the reform school.

Might Have Been an Innocent Man.

Concord Standard.

In view of the fact that an excited nervous lady might make a mistake in identifying one of a class that gives rise to the saying "all coons look alike to me" and that the negro especially fears to die in uncandor, and that such repeated and forcible influences were brought to bear on Fred Alexander at Leavenworth it seems rather more than even chances that an innocent man was the victim of a mob more noisy and ferocious than any in the South. It seems a case making another very strong argument against execution without trial. This we think must be a humiliation to the State and to the race. The South is more gentle and proceeds more from certainty.

Bad for Negroes and Bad for Whites

Greensboro Patriot.

Several measures have been introduced looking to a separation of the taxes paid by the whites and blacks for school purposes. Inasmuch as the negroes pay only a small portion of the taxes, such a law would practically do away with all public schools for the negroes in this State. While there is a demand in some sections for such ligislation, we do not believe it will be enacted. It would be neither wise nor just. It would not be good for the negroes; it would be harmful to the whites.

Pan.

Siler City Messenger.

As our readers, from this until next fall, will frequently see the word Pan in connection with the great exposition to be held at Buffalo, N. Y., beginning May 1, 1901, and for the information of anyone who does not know the meaning of the term we will say that it comes from the Greek, meaning all. Thus it is an Exposition of all the Americas—North, South and Central.

NOT THE ENEMY HE FEARED.

The Department Chief Hastily Fled from a Messenger Bearing Him a Check.

The chief of one of the bureaus in a certain department has been beset recently by newspaper men desirous of interviewing him concerning a subject upon which he will soon be compelled to act. So assiduous were they that the poor chief, made desperate by their pursuit of him, resorted to every possible subterfuge to avoid them. For weeks he arose with the sun and slipped out of the back door, the front door even at that early hour being in a state of siege. At the department his faithful clerk stood between him and his persecutors, whom he managed to escape in the afternoon by driving far into the country, says the New York Tribune.

But one pursuer, more persistent than the rest, was not to be outdone, and followed on horseback. Hearing a horse galloping behind his victoria the other day, the hunted chief looked back and saw a man following him at a furious pace, waving a paper above his head and shrieking to him to stop.

"Drive on," he ordered; "don't let that man overtake us; drive for your life!"

"Wait, wait a moment," screamed the man on horseback; "I've got something for you!"

But the victoria bowled on at all possible speed, the rider following fast behind. The chase was a long and hot one, ending with a victory for the equestrian.

"How do you do, Mr. X——?" he asked when he came up to the carriage. "What are you running away from me for?"

"Because I am tired of you infernal newspaper people," he replied, "and I won't give you a bit of information until I render my decision, so that's all you've got for your race."

"Newspaper people?" queried the breathless rider; "I am not a newspaper man. I'm clerk to the law firm of B. & B."

"And what do you want of me?" asked the chief, with a sickly smile.

"You grubstaked a man to go to the Klondike two or three years ago, didn't you?"

"Yes," responded the chief. "What about it?"

"Well, he struck pay dirt and sent us a check for you covering the stake, with interest, and including a handsome bonus, with the request that it should be delivered in person. I've been two weeks trying to get at you and almost lost my position because I did not succeed. To-day Mr. B—— told me that if I could not give you that check he guessed I was too slow for them, and I need not come back. So here I am and here's the check. Please give me a receipt."

Since this incident the chief has abandoned his habit of early rising for fear he may miss some other debtor desirous of paying up.

When a man is considered to be very clever his wife thinks that his greatest exhibition of cleverness was in picking her out to marry him.—Atchison Globe.

MIRRORS ON THE BAN LIST.

Convicts in British Prisons Are Denied the Use of Looking-Glasses.

"What!" exclaims the astonished reader, "is it possible that there are any civilized persons on the face of the earth who are not in the habit of beholding their visages reflected from time to time in a mirror of some kind? Surely this cannot be so." Wrong, quite wrong, gentle reader, for at the present time, strange as it may appear, there are hundreds of men and women in the United Kingdom who have not gazed into a mirror for years, says London Tit-Bits.

The convicts confined in her majesty's prisons form members of this community. From the moment of a convict's entrance to a jail to the moment of his exit he is not permitted to have the use of a mirror of any kind, the smallest piece of glass being rigidly denied to him. To the women convicts this absence of a mirror forms one of the chief hardships of confinement, and many a female warder can tell piteous tales of women who have actually fallen upon their knees and sobbed out entreaties for the loan of a morsel of mirror—"just for a second." All these entreaties have perforce to be disregarded—and it therefore comes about that many a female convict passes three or four years without being permitted to gaze upon her own features.

It must not be imagined, however, that it is merely wearers of the government "broad arrow uniform" who are thus deprived of the pleasure of scanning their faces in the glass, for, incredible as it may seem, there have been many instances of eccentric individuals who, for some reason or another, have vowed never to look into a mirror as long as life endured.

Such a case occurred some years ago at Carcassonne, in France, where a young and beautiful widow, much given to frivolities, lost her only child, a boy of three, while dressing her hair before the mirror for a ball to which she was about to wend her way. The child, left to himself, wandered into the roadway and was run over and killed by a passing dray and the mother, heartbroken by the shocking affair, which she attributed to her own neglect, vowed that she would never again look into mirror.

She kept her word and until the day of her death, which occurred about three years later, she did not behold her face on a single occasion. Every mirror was removed from the flat which she occupied—nor were silver dishes brought to her table, lest she should see her features reflected therein.

In one of the Midland counties of England, not so very long ago, there passed away a farmer who had not beheld his own face for nearly 15 years. The farmer in question was superstitious to the point of credulity, and on a certain occasion a gypsy informed him that he would die while gazing into a mirror. Terrified by this weird prediction, the weak-minded man resolved that he would never again scan his features in the glass and rigidly kept his word, dying eventually at the ripe age of 78.

A young Italian peasant woman who wedded a sailor told him on the eve of his departure for a long voyage that she would not look upon her features in the mirror until he returned to her, safe and sound. The unfortunate man's vessel was wrecked in the gulf of Mexico, all aboard the ship being drowned, but the distracted widow refused to believe that her husband was dead and vowed that she would adhere to her resolve regarding the nonuse of a mirror for another year. As each year passed the vow was renewed, but eventually a new suitor came upon the scene and paid court to the woman, with the result that she married him in due course and looked once more upon her comely face after a lapse of six years.

A Hopeless Case.

Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady tells a story of a little boy he knew on the frontier, who belonged to a family who had trained him to believe in the deep water form of baptism, and was experimenting with the household cat and a bucket of water. The animal evidently did not believe in immersion, for she resisted, bit and scratched, until finally the little boy, with his hands covered with scratches and with tears in his eyes, gave up the effort to effect the regeneration of the cat. "Dog gone you!" he cried, "go and be an Episcopal cat if you want to!"—N. Y. Tribune.

Remains of Ancient Man.

In some grottoes in Algeria French explorers recently discovered stone implements mingled with the remains of extinct animals belonging to quaternary times. Further explorations indicate that during the age when the grottoes were inhabited the coast of Algeria had a configuration different from that of to-day. Among the animals associated with the ancient human inhabitants of Algeria were the rhinoceros, the hippopotamus and various species of ruminants.—N. Y. Sun.

GOT THE BETTER OF THEM.

A Street Car Conductor's Witty Way of Settling Women Who Are Officious.

A party of five handsomely attired women boarded a North Clark street cable car at the north end of Lincoln park and took seats near the front end of the last trailer. Half a dozen other men and women were seated in the car and they overheard a conversation that ran something like this, relates the Chicago Chronicle:

"Never mind, I'll pay the car fare," said one stately woman wearing a handsome sealskin cloak, as she opened her pretty purse.

"No, let me pay it," interposed the woman in the long automobile cloak, who sat next to the first speaker. "You remember you paid it the last time we came down-town together."

"I want to pay it."

"No, I'm going to pay it, for I've just got the even change."

"Oh, let me pay it to settle the dispute."

And so the argument as to which one of the five should contribute to the coffers of the railroad company continued for several minutes to the great enjoyment of the other occupants of the car.

During the controversy the conductor stood just inside the door of the car. He pretended to pay no attention to the women, but he was listening, just the same. He had been collecting fares on street cars for many years and he had heard these arguments before.

The conductor finally stepped to the platform to assist a passenger on the car. Just as he again opened the door to go to the five women for their fares the woman in the sealskin cloak arose. She held a quarter in her neatly gloved hand and started toward the conductor with her hand outstretched. She wanted to "steal a march" on her companions. The conductor saw his opportunity to "get even" for all the time he had lost in waiting for the women to settle their little dispute and he seized it. He grasped her extended hand, and shaking it vigorously said:

"Why, how do you do? I'm awful glad to see you."

The woman was astonished and so were her companions, but they all realized immediately that they had been made the victim of the conductor's ready wit. The woman who was so anxious to pay the fares hurried back to her seat. Not a word was spoken. The conductor returned to the platform. A couple of blocks further on he went up to the party and collected the fare for all from one who had taken no part in the dispute.

When the women left the car at Washington street the conductor remarked to a man on the platform:

"Well, I guess she'll remember me for an indefinite period."

If we confine ourselves to the last dozen years, says the New York Independent, we shall see that Siberia has received in that space of time 100,582 transported persons, of whom 95,876 were men and 4,706 were women. Of the families of transported persons there were 155 husbands, 17,556 wives and 40,900 children. Siberia has thus received in the course of 12 years 159,191 individuals, one-thirty-sixth of the total population. If one takes into consideration the number of the transported only without their families we shall see that during that period Siberia has received for each 57 inhabitants a criminal or a man recognized as more or less dangerous in the country of his origin. These figures permit us to draw certain important conclusions. First, transportation does not contribute to the colonization of a country, owing to the great preponderance of unmarried persons; second, the number of vicious elements introduced into the country passes all reasonable proportion. Of the number of transported males only 17,556 were married; the other 17,322, or 81 1-3 per cent., were unmarried.

These conclusions are completely confirmed by a detailed study of the conditions of transported persons. The number of transported persons residing in Siberia in 1898 was 298,574, or nearly 300,000 individuals of both sexes. Half of these were criminals condemned to transportation under the criminal code, the other half under administrative authority. But they can hardly be distinguished one from the other. The opprobrium of their situation and the misery of their existence have reduced them to an absolutely uniform mass. The third of this mass—100,000 men—escape all control. The place of their residence is unknown to the police. They steal on the highways and in villages, they beg and extort money in every way possible. In the summer they bivouac under the stars and conceal themselves in the forests of Siberia; in the winter they move toward the cities and use every method to secure a lodgment in the local prisons. The second 100,000 men are equally in a state of vagabondage, but they change their residence to find work. If they have not lost the habit of work, and if they preserve some spirit of honesty, they may succeed in establishing themselves again; if not, they soon augment the ranks of criminal vagabonds. Of the 100,000 who are left about 30,000 are cultivators of the earth and furnish an element of order. It is remarkable that this number corresponds to the number of the transported married persons. The other 70,000 are workmen. So long as they are young and in good health they gain their daily bread, but when infirmity comes many of them take to begging and often terminate their existence in prison, which they have avoided until that time.

A Night's Comradeship

[Through mistake yesterday the conclusion of "Gallant Little Hale Robbins" was run under this head. Today we print "A Night's Comradeship" corrected. Tomorrow we will give the former story in full.]

HE WAS in a city of 2,000,000 souls, but he knew none of them. He did not know the name of a street; there was not one light, however feeble, among all the lights of the town that shone for him. Indeed, he was not sure that in all the world a light was lit with thought of him. Perhaps—it might be, remotely and indefinitely—that a certain distant, feeble gleam in a town a thousand miles away lit with some faint of his return. But, after all, it was improbable. He had done nothing to deserve affectionate memory. He had been ungrateful to those who had raised him, selfish and bitter to the girl who might have loved him, scornful of old friends and neighbors, and bent upon his own obstinate, willful way. The result was a step downward—a step which precipitated! Then the punishment—brief but shameful—and now liberty again and no knowledge of what to do with it.

The icy rain that fell, the wind that slapped his face with clammy and insulting hands, the cruel hardness of the paved streets, the impregnable look of the city walls appalled him. In spite of his arrogant putting down of the thought, he could not but remember the village, which he had held in such contempt, but where, once, he would have had a welcome from every man and woman, boy and girl, dog and horse. It was as much lost to him now, that cordiality and friendliness, as if those who had offered it were people of another globe. Except always—but, no, he would not trust himself to think of that one possible exception, of that one light which burned, perhaps, for him.

He did not know where to go. He had a horror of going to any place that might be inhabited by such dark spirits as those he had just left in their captivity. He had had enough of darkness. Yet where else could he go? He must be careful with the few dollars that were in his pocket. They were hateful dollars—the dole of the state to its offending child. He had no sooner assured himself of the need for the scrupulous guarding of this treasure than he was seized with a passionate impulse to cast it from him in the gutter. The money used should come to his hands fresh from toil and liberty! But a saner thought impelled him not only to retain the money, but to place it in a small pocket in his flannel shirt under his vest.

He was growing cold and sleepy. The thoughts that had beaten in his brain—wild, tiger thoughts that fretted and paced and would not lie quiet—had worn him out. The need for rest was upon him imperatively. He looked about him for some corner in which he could creep for a short time, and he saw by his side what at first appeared to be the evil, yawning mouth of the night, but which proved, upon closer examination, to be a large burned building, ice-coated, grimy, desolate. Hardly realizing the poorness of his choice, he turned in here and groped about amid the debris, wondering if he could not find some place out of the wind where he could spend the night.

The place was far from being a complete ruin, as he soon saw, and he stumbled finally against a flight of stairs. They were intact, and he climbed them cautiously and came upon a great wareroom, stripped of all that had once occupied it, but in a state of only partial ruin. At the end of this great room he discovered a small apartment which had evidently been used for an office. The glow from a neighboring arc light showed him that the room was unharmed. He entered and looked about him. An old fireplace with a hideous mottled iron mantel was at one side. Two common chairs remained, and there was a shade at the window. William Rhoda took it upon himself to laugh. Actually, the place seemed homelike, compared with those relentless streets.

He had an idea—a bold one. He crept down among the debris and gathered an armful of half-burned wood, and with this he returned to the little room. Then he drew the shade, closed the door, and proceeded to light him a fire. It was incredible—the comfort of it! He warmed himself before it, chuckling with delight.

"It is really gorgeous," said he aloud.

"Ain't it?" responded a voice. Rhoda was on his feet like a cat and facing the door. A man with a gaunt face looked in.

"Room enough fer two?" he inquired. Rhoda's heart was beating at his ears.

"I shall probably be killed," he reflected, and remembered with anger that he had no weapon of any sort, not even a pocketknife. The other man had entered and closed the door behind him, standing with his back to it. He was short and rather stout, and his head sat almost upon his shoulders. His heavy nose and mouth bespoke an obstinate, but not particularly ill-natured temperament. His eyes were sunken in his head, but Rhoda could see that they were black and singularly sharp in their expression. The feet of the man protruded from his shoes, and his clothes were in a ragged and filthy state. He took his hat from his head and dashed the moisture from it.

"I guess yer givin' a house warmin', ain't ye?" he asked, smiling in as reassuring a manner as possible. "I've been legging it fer 18 hours, and I'm fit to drop."

Rhoda would never have encountered all of those embarrassments which had made him an outcast if he had not been of a whimsical temperament. Now, suddenly, his fear deserted him. He desired an adventure. It certainly had been devoid of adventure in the place of his residence for the last two years.

He held out his hand.

"Come in," said he. "There are two chairs and fire enough for forty. It is a pity I cannot give you something to eat and drink."

He was smiling, and actually, for a moment, a glow went through him like that which comes from the exercise of hospitality. The other man advanced almost jauntily.

"Well, I call this white!" he said, in commendation. "You're a gentleman, I ken see that, if you are down on your luck."

"Don't speak of that, please," said Rhoda, lightly. "I was just making up my mind to forget it for a time."

"Eh? Well, that's a good idee. Something to eat and drink, did yeh say? Man, I've got it!"

"No!"

"Here yeh are." He took two slices of dried bread out of his pocket.

"That's the eatin'."

He produced a flask in which there was, perhaps, four mouthfuls of amber liquid. "And that's the drinkin', and there might be more."

"We can toast the bread," suggested Rhoda. His guest drew a formidable knife from his pocket and opened its one terrible blade slowly. Rhoda smiled with infantile grace and seated himself cross-legged before the fire. He was not entirely sure of the purpose of that unsheathing of the weapon, but he determined to make light of it. However, he had apparently no cause for apprehension. His companion stuck a slice of bread on the point of the blade and held it up before the fire.

"It smells good," remarked Rhoda. "I wish to heaven there was a smell of hot coffee going with it."

The other man looked pensively into the fire.

"Yes," he said, reflectively, "I wish so, too." He got to the second slice of bread and toasted it to a warm brown. Then they began to eat. It was quite a ceremony. The men talked of going to a climate where there was no winter, and they were truly magnificent. No one listening would have doubted their ability to visit such a place if they had pleased. Afterward they made the fire safe and laid down with their feet toward the glowing ashes and slept.

"Maybe I'll be I when I wake up and maybe I won't," thought Rhoda, humorously, as sleep came over him. "But it doesn't matter, really. That knife, however, is an ugly sleeping companion. I dare say I shall know more about it by morning than I do now."

He fell asleep easily for all of that, and he dreamt of walking under palms with the man by his side, and of sailing with him over summer seas. He dreamt of fighting by his side, and of struggling to defend him from some danger; and then, suddenly, he sat up and saw the dawn peeping about the edges of the curtain.

"So the knife isn't in me, after all," he commented, and looked about for his companion. But he was not to be found. The room was unoccupied save by himself. Instinctively he felt for his money. It was safe. And on the floor by his side lay the knife. Rhoda lifted it and stared at it stupidly. Then, by degrees, the significance of it came over him. It was a gift for remembrance, and all that its owner had to bestow. It was the first evidence of friendship that the man who held it in his trembling hand had received for years. Something that he had thought dead stirred in him. He put the gift in his pocket and arose to his feet. Obscurely it came across him that the hospitality had been worth while, the confidence had been worth while—it had been worth while to dream those dreams of comradeship. He went out of the murky building and down on the street. As he walked along he held his head like a man who has a purpose in his mind. The skulking attitude of the night before was gone.

He walked into a newspaper office and bent over the desk where the advertisements for workers were displayed, and, as he looked at them, writing down a number of addresses, he ranked himself once more in the mighty file of honest men. Dimly, like an evil vision, away into the oblivion of the past, wound that other procession of which he had once been a part—that procession of dark figures with averted gaze, with mischievous hands, with vain thoughts!—Chicago Tribune.

8191—Ladies' Fancy Shirt Waist.
32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inch bust

LADIES' WAIST WITH FANCY BOLERO, NO. 8186.

Light blue, running from the palest baby shades to a deep turquoise, is used to trim the lovely black reception and evening toilettes which are so much worn this season. The waist here illustrated is made of black velvet, combined with ciel blue tucked Liberty satin and heavy white lace.

It is mounted on a glove-fitted lining, which closes in the center front, the seams and darts being feather-bound. The velvet is stretched smoothly across the backs and side backs, displaying no fullness at the belt. They are faced to a round yoke depth with tucked satin.

The entire front is made of satin, which forms a blouse over the narrow velvet girdle. Fancy boleros are included in the under-arm and shoulder seams, the right side crossing over and fastening on the left with silk loops and small gold buttons.

The upper edge is finished with a bertha of white lace, which outlines the back yoke, and is closed at the left side under a velvet rosette.

The upper sleeve is a comparatively full puff, drooping slightly over a close-fitting lace undersleeve. Narrow velvet bands decorate the collar and sleeves,

This waist may be developed in panne, cloth, heavy silks or figured velvets, with chiffon, mousseline or lace for trimming.

To make the waist in the medium size will require two yards of velvet, with seven-eights yard of allover lace and seven-eights yard of tucking. The pattern, No. 8186, is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inch bust measure.

Illinois Gold Democrats.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 17.—The State Central Committee of the Gold Democrats of the State of Illinois will meet tonight in this city. It is considered practically certain that John P. Hopkins, of Chicago, who was chairman of the Illinois Gold Democratic State Committee in 1896, will be chosen chairman of the State Central Committee. The call for the meeting at this date was signed by 21 out of 31 members, all of whom will vote for Hopkins. The Bryan men wanted the calling of the meeting postponed until a later date, hoping that the visit of Bryan to this city on Jackson Day would have a good effect upon his strength in the committee, but the majority was opposed to that idea.

RHEUMATISM—CATARRH—DISEASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments, doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air blood purifiers, have failed to do. B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucuous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blood that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure and so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardner, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in B. B. B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.

This season there is a large death rate among children from croup and lung troubles. Prompt action will save the little ones from these terrible diseases. A THOUSAND TONGUES.

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa. when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"it soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. Kings' New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

When threatened by pneumonia or any other lung trouble, prompt relief is necessary, as it is dangerous to delay. We would suggest that One Minute Cough Cure be taken as soon as indications of having taken cold are noticed. It cures quickly and its early use prevents consumption. Howard Gardner.

THAT THROBBING HEADACHE.

Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident, of which Mrs. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows; 'I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides; no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying Electric Bitters: and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at C. E. Holton's drug store.

Such little pills as DeWitt's Little Early Risers are very easily taken, and they are wonderfully effective in cleansing the liver and bowels. Howard Gardner.

EDITOR'S AWFUL PLIGHT.

F. M. Higgins, editor Seneca, (Ills.,) News, was afflicted for years with piles that no doctor or remedy helped until he tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve. He writes two boxes wholly cured him. It's the surest Pile cure on earth and the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Only 25 cents. Sold by C. E. Holton, druggist.

Pepsin preparations often fail to relieve indigestion because they can digest only albumnious foods. There is one preparation that digests all classes of food, and that is Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It cures the worst cases of indigestion and gives instant relief. for it digests what you eat. Howard Gardner.

The Place--The Bargains.

Johnson & Dorsett's of course is the place. They are selling out for the purpose of going out of business. It is a genuine sale and they do just as they promise. They do not expect to begin business again, and they are not trying to clean out old stock to make room for new.

The bargains? Oh, they are there, plenty of them. If you haven't been to see, but of course you have, everybody is going, ask your neighbor about them. They are too many to be enumerated here. Come and look over them. There is no doubt about your being well pleased and paid for your trouble.

Mrs. Holt Entertains the Bachelor Girls

Mrs. Ernest Holt entertained the Bacherlor Girls yesterday afternoon at her home on summit Avenue. This was the first meeting of the girls since last winter, and during the interval some of them have been pierced by Cupid's darts and have forsaken the Bachelor ranks.

Mrs. Holt, as is her wont, entertained charmingly, and her guests carried away the rememberance of a pleasantly spent afterdoon. Six handed euchre was played and the prize, a handsome picture was won by Mrs. Scott, of Graham. Consolation was given Miss Frances O'Brien by a pretty candlestick, and Miss Bessie Boyd, of Reidsville, captured the booby, a monkey.

Those present were Misses Walker Fry, Pearl Balsley, Lillian Staples, Lizzie Leigh Dick, Marjorie Lyon, Alice Small, May Small, Frances O'Brien, Bessie Boyd, of Reidsville, Catherine Geiter, Edna Hirshinger, of Charlotte, Berta Mebane, Mrs. Scott, of Graham, Mrs. Mebane, of Graham, Mrs. E.
